VALLEY FANS GIVEN RARE TREAT
BY THE REPUBLICAN DURING YANK-
GIANT BATTLE FOR WORLD TITLE

Two walks and an error by Peckinpah yesterday's game and the world's championship to the New York Yankees and across Art Neff's first victory in the series just closed.

Hoyt pitched a brilliant game and the lone run scored against him came without a hit. The fatuous hero lost none of his well earned glory by yesterday's defeat, as he had already turned in two of the series' victories. He held the Giants to six hits and struck out seven batsmen, but his four free passes counted against him.

Art Neff worked in three games, losing his two first starts by close margins. In the second game of the series Neff allowed three hits, two of them fukes, but the Yanks scored three runs and he lost. In his second start he was opposed by Hoyt and though pitching a wonderful game his teammates were unable to score behind him.

Yesterday the Giants were fighting from the first ball, taking advantage of every opening, and their fighting instinct proved the big factor in forcing one lone run across and winning a world's championship.

War's error lost the Wednesday game, but Peckinpah draws a berth in the hall of world's series goats with his boot yesterday.

The biggest crowd of the series watched yesterday's game played on The Republican player board and the enthusiasm of the thousands of valley fans would do justice to the Polo grounds. Fans from Peoria, Glendale, Chandler, Tempe and Mesa came to Phoenix yesterday and stood on Central avenue during the nine innings of the snappiest world series baseball game ever played. The wonder board attracted just as much attention as the game itself and the comment of the fans give the Arizona Republican pride in the best report of a world sporting event ever attempted in the Southwest.

Neff's wildness in yesterday's game put the Giant portlander in the hole so often the fans had plenty of opportunity to show the Yankee rooters in the majority.

When Babe Ruth went in to bat for Pipp in the ninth inning the fans were on their toes and the vast throng was pulling for Babe to hit. The nervous New York Yankees were released when Babe grounded out to Kelly. The mighty Bambino in person could not have received a more hearty welcome than his name received when it was inserted in the batter's box.

The effort of The Republican to cover the big series was a wonderful success. Of the many thousands who watched the game as guests of The Republican, not a dissatisfied fan was found. The fans were unanimous in their appreciation of the best service ever attempted in the Southwest. Traveling salesmen and visitors who have watched world's series returns in other cities pronounce The Republican player board the most perfect ever attempted and they marvel at the progressiveness of the State's Leading Newspaper in giving the game play by play on a player board that West Coast papers were not able to obtain for this series. In several eastern cities the wonder board is used at parks, where an admission fee is charged, and by special arrangements with the designer and builder of the wonder board the New York Times covered the big series for the first time this year.

The Arizona Republican not only keeps abreast of the times, but demonstrated during the 1921 world's series that The Republican is ahead of any paper west of the Mississippi river.

The Republican is especially grateful to the Phoenix Presto-Lite shop for the prompt and efficient manner in which they took care of the storage batteries for the wonder board. The operation of the board required two fully charged batteries for each game, and that the batteries were in tip-top condition was demonstrated in the perfect manner in which the board operated throughout the series. If the batteries were not up to full capacity it would have been almost impossible to carry out many of the plays shown on the player board.

THE CRUCIAL MOMENT

A remarkable picture of The Republican Player Board showing a section of the crowd watching Wednesday's game. The picture was snapped in the first half of the ninth inning with two men down and the Giants leading by one run. The batting order shows Baker safe at first on a single and Schang at bat. The disc at first base shows the runner right on the play through the efforts of the Mountain States Telephone company, over whose wires the Associated Press service is carried, and the quick work of Operator Dean of the Associated Press-Arizona Republican leased wire.

The Republican takes great pride in the success of the world's series games played for the fans of the Salt River valley. The many thousands who watched the series is sufficient evidence of the feeling of the fans. The paper made many new friends during the series.

The Arizona Republican prides itself on the quality of its general news service and the sporting page will be maintained at the same standard as the rest of the paper.

The big series is over and we can settle back to normal once more with the assurance that The Republican will protect its patrons in the future as it has in the past.

Tigers Will Play
Florence Sunday
At Eastlake Park

Jack Wonders and the Florence Independents are coming over Sunday afternoon to tangle with Crandall's Tigers.

The Tigers and Phoenix All Stars were booked for a benefit game Sunday, but the game has been postponed to give the All Stars more practice. Then the White Sox decided to play the Tigers, but the hunting season depleted the Sox lineup so Crandall is given a chance to play Florence.

Sunday's game will be played at Eastlake park. The lineup of both teams will be given out tomorrow.

DURBAN, S. A.—Miskofini, hereditary chief of the Amafura tribe, has been sentenced to death by the native high court for the murder of Milla, another native chief. Miskofini, it is alleged, tried to gain control over Milla's tribe.

Quail Season
Open Saturday;
Ducks Sunday

Quail on Toast! Um-m-m-m. The quail season opens tomorrow and the old familiar menu will tickle the lucky Nimrod's palate when he rushes home with his game bag filled with birds.

Reports from various sections of the valley and over on the desert promise good hunting this year. The old timers report a plentiful supply of quail at the familiar haunts and the flocks have not yet learned to shy at the crack of the shotgun.

Sunday morning the duck season opens and the hunter who fails to get out tomorrow can kill two birds with one stone Sunday morning. The valley sloughs will be the mecca for duck hunters while the quail fanciers take to the desert and grain fields.

COLORED CHAMP
MEETS CYCLONE
TURNER AT NEW ARENA TONIGHT

Fight fans who crave the slugfest type of fighter will get an eyeful at the Capitol City arena this evening when Lee Anderson answers the song for the first round of his bout with Cyclone Turner.

Anderson decisively defeated Kid Norfolk for the light heavyweight championship of the world in a Phoenix ring and Lee wants the fight followers in this city to see how much he has improved since that memorable battle. If Turner shows any kind of fight he will find Lee ready with both mits to mix in with him.

In three workouts at the Capital City arena Turner showed speed and a punch, but how much he can take without weakening remains to be seen when he meets Anderson. His workouts stamp him as a real fighter and the local millers vouch for his punching ability. Anderson best him in 12 rounds, but was unable to stop him when they fought at Fort Worth. Turner says Lee cannot stop him and he vows the champ will be lucky to stay the limit. It takes a good man to stop Anderson and if Turner can do the trick we'll admit he has the stuff that molds champs.

Anderson decisively defeated Sam Langford in their last meeting removing him as a possible contender for his title. Sam was much heavier than Lee, but the weight advantage proved useless in his argument with Anderson.

In the semi-final Ira O'Neil and Fighting Beaver will try for a kyo in six rounds. Ira holds one decision over Beaver and if the dope runs true he should repeat tonight.

Dick Campbell had a good showing against Wildcat Johns last Friday, in fact he made such a good showing that he is matched for four rounds with Kid Rivers tonight. Rivers had started six times in the last two months and he came out on top each time. Dick has a better kick than Rivers, but he lacks the polish that has gained the clever Mexican a host of admirers among Phoenix fight followers.

In the curtain raiser Young Rufus will make one more attempt to win a fight. Rufus The Two played in hard luck in his bouts with Romo
